

A COLLECTION OF ARTICLES & BLOGS
FROM EFFECTIVE CHURCH COMMUNICATIONS

Halloween a great time for evangelism

BY YVON PREHN

Introduction to this book

This book is one of a series of books in the Effective Church Communications Library that is a compilation of articles from the Effective Church Communications website on this topic.

I've written on similar topics for many years and trust that the collection of materials on the same topic will be useful and certainly much easier to access than jumping around the website.

Note on publication of this book in 2020

Obviously, we will be celebrating Halloween and other holidays differently, or for some maybe not, while we are in the midst of a pandemic.

Hopefully if some of this information does not apply at this time, it will be useful in whatever creative ways churches decide to apply it, now or in the future.

The creative adaptability of church communicators is astounding and I pray these articles will inspire you to do what you do best to reach your community for Jesus and help your congregations grow into mature disciples, no matter what challenges you face in our world as we wait for our Lord Jesus.

Yours in His service,

Yuon Prehn

There is no neutral ground in the universe; every square inch, every split second is claimed by God and counterclaimed by Satan.

Christian Reflections, C.S. Lewis

We put up with anything rather than hinder the gospel of Christ. . . . I make myself a slave to everyone to win as many as possible. . . . I have become all things to all men so that by all possible means I might save some.

(1 Corinthians 9: 12,19, 22)

There are two equal and opposite errors into which our race can fall about the devils. One is to disbelieve in their existence.

The other is to believe, and to feel and excessive and unhealthy interest in them. They themselves are equally pleased by both errors.

Screwtape Letters, C.S. Lewis

Overview of this Halloween Outreach book

Churches seldom fail in the events they do for outreach. The events themselves are almost always a success, (church folks put on great events!) at least for the church members who put it on and the church members who attend.

Where churches are sometimes less than successful, if they are honest with themselves, is with the impact the church had on the community that goes beyond providing a good time. Here are the questions that are sometimes hard to answer:

- Did people start coming to the church because of the event?
- Did people ask questions about the church based on the kindness of the people hosting the event?
- Did people check out your website? Email the church asking for more information?
- How many people came to church in the weeks following the event because of either experiences at the event, or the church follow up after it?
- How many people made progress on the road to getting to know Jesus as a result of your event?

If you find yourself asking these questions and you aren't happy with the answers, this book can help your church make a radical change in what you do at your Halloween Outreach events, how you prepare for, and follow up from them.

We have an extraordinary opportunity to connect with our communities and to connect our communities with the church this Halloween season. Following is an overview of the sections in this book that can help.

Section One: Articles

Over the years I've written quite a few articles about how to plan, host, put on, and follow up for a Halloween Outreach and the most useful of them are reprinted here. Because these are reprints (with some modifications) there may be a bit of repetition, but usually of recommendations worth repeating.

PLEASE take time to read and discuss them as a staff. It will make an unimaginable difference in the success of your outreach if your staff is united in vision and purpose for all you do in your communications surrounding the outreach event. Consider options and then pray together in your planning times.

You have my permission to make as many copies of the PDFs or articles as you want to share them with staff and volunteers.

You can also copy and pass around the communication files within your church and to your volunteers in print and on your website. I created these materials and I'm giving you permission to make as many copies as you want.

Section Two: CASE STUDY

Many churches think they are doing a great job organizing and promoting events or recruiting volunteers to help at the event and then when they don't get the turnout they want at the event or the volunteers they were counting on, they wonder what happened. This case study uses a real promotional piece from a not-very successful church Halloween outreach.

It goes into detail on what went wrong, how to change it, and shows you the kind of PR you need to do for success.

Section Three: PDF Gallery

I don't just tell you why you should do things and then leave you with how to figure out how to do it: this section contains an overview and advice for using all the materials I talk about, plus full size images of all the items I tell you to create: invitation cards, postcards, bulletin inserts. There is also a sample of the brochure from the Case Study.

The current versions of these materials, that may be somewhat different than what is pictured, but accomplishes the same purpose are on the Effective Church Communications website at: <https://www.effectivechurchcom.com/templates/templates-harvest-festival-and-halloween/>

The link above also has Templates for Fall Festival outreach for churches that don't want to use the term "Halloween."

This collection of materials will give you many resources and combined with hard work and lots of prayer should result in your most effective Halloween or Fall Festival outreach ever.

section one

Articles

---

Listing of Articles

Halloween—a great time for evangelism—REALLY.....	3
The Apostle Paul, his biblical example for Halloween Outreach and why it is OK for us to follow his example .....	5
EXAMPLES of communications you can use to share the Gospel at Halloween .....	7
What About Halloween? A search for Halloween origins and how Christians should respond .....	11
For Successful Fall & Winter Outreach Publications: Clarify and Coordinate for greater lasting impact.....	14
Church Halloween Celebrations: why simply having fun and not sinning is not the point of why we do what we do .....	19
The three steps of a strategic, multi-channel, all-church approach to fall outreach and evangelism .....	24
Always use holidays for more than celebration at your church .....	27
Don't be a Secret Saint—a better way to do outreach and connect people to your church! .....	29
Charging for Fall Festival outreach events, what is wrong with that? .....	33
The Teal Pumpkin Project is a great service to kids and families with allergies .....	35
Complete details in church communications are essential for people to connect with church events good intro here .....	39
What can happen if you if you work so hard on your event, but don't have time to work on event communications.....	48
Hidden tragedy of poor communication in recruiting volunteers for special events: no spiritual growth for members .....	50

Halloween—a great time for evangelism—REALLY

or how to use everything that is bad about Halloween as a tool to share the gospel

If there is a holiday that causes controversy in the church, it is Halloween. Some churches welcome it as a great time to do community outreach with alternative Halloween events; others shake their fingers and condemn churches that even mention the term.

It's always easier to curse the darkness than to flood it with light, but taking our cue from the Apostle Paul who used the pagan idols in Athens as his bridge to sharing the gospel, Effective Church Communications challenges you to use this time of year to share the gospel. This article are others that will provide motivation for looking at this time of year as an outreach opportunity, articles how to make special events in general more successful, plus overviews of the resources we have available on the Effective Church Communications website, www.effectivechurchcom.com.

Turn dislike into outreach

There is a lot to dislike about Halloween—its emphasis on and even glorification of evil, its focus on death and the macabre. At the same time, the topic of death is not something that most people in our pleasure and prosperity-obsessed world consider very often. Instead of running away from this, we can use this focus on the afterlife during the Halloween season as a bridge to share the gospel of Jesus, our Savior who conquered death.

This approach of taking whatever interest and approach was important to his audience and using it as a bridge to the gospel was the one taken by the Apostle Paul, as he wrote to the Corinthians:

To the Jews I became like a Jew, to win the Jews. To those under the law I became like one under the law (though I myself am not under the law), so as to win those under the law. To those not having the law I became like one not having the law (though I am not free from God's law but am under Christ's law), so as to win those not having the law. To the weak I became weak, to win the weak. I have become all things to all men so that by all possible means I might save some.

1 Cor. 9:20-22

We might paraphrase this today to say:

To those who celebrate Halloween I will offer an alternative celebration; to those who want to focus on death, I will offer the consideration of the Savior who conquered death; to those afraid to share the hope that is within them, I will share tools and opportunities to engage their friends in a consideration of Jesus. Our church will do whatever we can during the Halloween so that by all possible means we might save some.

We don't put on alternative Halloween events because the staff is bored or has run out of things to do. We spend the time and trouble to put on these events as a way we can reach people who might never come to our church for any other reason and use this time to introduce them to Jesus.

The next article discusses the Apostle Paul's approach in more detail and gives examples for how we might follow his lead.

The Apostle Paul, his biblical example for Halloween Outreach and why it is OK for us to follow his example

Halloween is huge—in marketing dollars spent, in candy sales, in the immense mind share it captures for almost two months prior to the actual day. Halloween stores, costume shops, many aisles in your local discount store—everywhere you go, Halloween confronts you. Though as Christians we might have genuine concerns about this, we can also make the most of this time and use Halloween as a time to connect with people and share the gospel.

To do that we first need to establish a biblical basis for the church to be involved in Halloween. Church leaders need to carefully consider this topic and carefully explain it to your congregation. If our people have genuine spiritual concerns about the appropriateness of Halloween outreach activities, we want to respect and answer those concerns.

Consider the Apostle Paul's example

When Paul got to Athens in Acts 17, before he shared the gospel, he took time to look at what people already worshipped. In Athens this consisted of many idols of pagan gods and altars to them. I'm sure many were beautiful and appealing (think of the Greek statues you see in museums) and since the worship of these gods was based as many of them were around feasting and sexual excess, they were appealing to many people.

The idols and all they represented were not appealing to Paul.

He had grown up with "Thou shalt have no other God's before me." Conservative, former Hebrew of Hebrews that he was, I'm sure these statues, altars, and what they represented were repulsive to him. But he didn't let his inner revulsion stand in the way of noticing the "altar to an unknown god."

I wonder what went through his mind as he considered how he might use it as a bridge to sharing the gospel message. I wonder if he stood and stared at it; I wonder if he walked quickly past and slowly returned as the Holy Spirit perhaps prompted him for a second look.

He would later use that most likely initially repulsive altar as a bridge to share the gospel.

In a similar way we can use Halloween if we look closely at it.

Consider also that he didn't do

Paul did not berate the Athenians for having so many idols. He could have. Like an Old Testament prophet, he could have loudly screamed, "Abomination, abomination! You are all evil, wicked sinners for having so many idols!"

He didn't do that. His focus was not on condemnation, but on redemption. With the focus of wanting to do something that would lead people towards salvation instead of merely insulting them, he could say “What you worship without knowing it, the ‘unknown god’ I want to tell you who is he is and how you can know him.” Paul looked past the obvious and offensive in the idols themselves and saw people who were searching for God.

Like the Apostle Paul we can take elements of our culture and use them as a bridge to share the gospel message.

At its core, Halloween is about life after death. Our culture may have twisted and trivialized this holiday, but there is no denying that at this time of year people are thinking about death and the afterlife probably more than at any other time. It may be a totally distorted view, but it is a topic of conversation.

At the core of the Christian faith is also a focus on death and life beyond the grave. Though we may have the same core subject, the Christian view is not about fanciful demons and goblins or grotesque witches: our core belief is that Jesus died a real physical death and three days later physically rose from the dead. He conquered death. And he offers the same extraordinary gift to us: a freedom from fear of death and life everlasting to those who trust him as Savior and follow him as Lord.

Halloween brings up the topic of life after death into the cultural conversation. People are already talking about it; we simply need tools and activities to turn them to looking at the Christian view of these topics.

All of this makes Halloween a fantastic opportunity for evangelism!

EXAMPLES of communications you can use to share the Gospel at Halloween

Ready to print PDFs and editable MS Publisher files of the communications below are at <https://www.effectivechurchcom.com/templates/templates-harvest-festival-and-halloween/>

In addition, you have my permission to take any of the text in the example below and either make up your own Halloween communications or use the messages in any way you want on social media.

First, you need to motivate your congregation to

Business Card size

You can use these for invitations to Halloween events or you can make up dozens of them, give them to your congregation and have them include one in all their Halloween giveaways. One gospel guerilla tactic that can be done is to put one of these in items at Halloween stores (the empty plastic pumpkins are one option).

Front of card

Halloween, a fun time for tombstones, ghosts, and all things scary. . . . .

We can laugh at death when it's part of a Halloween spook house, but we don't laugh when it touches someone we love or when we must face it—and that's ahead of us all. This Halloween, check out the one person in all of history who conquered death—Jesus. On the back of this card are resources to help.

Halloween is fun, but it's also time to consider eternally serious and truly scary questions.

Back of Card

Life is short; eternity is not. You owe it to yourself to carefully research what happens after you die. We believe your choice is between a literal, real heaven or hell—not a Halloween fantasy. The sites below are about Jesus and the truth about life after death.

Check them out—

<https://www.cru.org/how-to-know-god.html>

<http://www.whoisjesus-really.com/>

<http://www.everystudent.com/features/faith.html>

<https://journeyanswers.com/who-is-jesus>

Text for half-page cards, flyers, bulletin inserts

Halloween, Fun time for tombstones, ghosts, and all things scary...

But what about when it isn't Halloween?

We can laugh at death when it's part of a Halloween spook house, but we don't laugh when it touches someone we love or when we must face it.

This Halloween take some time to check out the one person in all of history who conquered death—Jesus.

His resurrection is the key belief of the Christian faith and what makes Jesus unique among religious leaders.

We invite you to be part of activities at our church or you can check facts online and in private. Take time, ask questions, research the answers.

Halloween might be a fun time but seeking serious answers to life-changing subjects is always important.

On the back of this card are events, websites, and other resources for you to find out more.

A non-scary way to share your faith at Fall Festivals and Halloween

Halloween is a fantastic time for outreach and many churches make the most of it with Trunk or Treat, a Fall Festival and similar outreach activities.

In addition to that, it can also be a great time to encourage your people to invite their friends to these events. To do that, I did up a flyer or bulletin insert that encourages your congregation to use this time of year and the events of your church as a great time to share their faith. Following are images of the flyer and then the text of the flyer you can use in whatever way you want.

A reason to be part of our Fall Festival Event—
It's a way to share your faith that isn't scary.

This time of year is all about getting scared—for real or make-believe—with ghosts, spiders, witches, and scary faces all around. But as scary as the season is, there is something even scarier for many church people, and that is sharing their faith.

Deep down inside, most believers feel they ought to be doing more to let people know about the joy of salvation in Jesus, but at the same time, many would rather meet a real ghost or walk through a pit of live slimy creatures than share their faith with a neighbor.

Why is this so scary?

Every individual has his or her own reasons, but I find much of the fear comes from mistaken ideas about “witnessing” that are no more true than the masks worn on Halloween.

The false boogeyman version of faith sharing for many involves going up to a total stranger and asking “Are you saved?” or some similar question and then painfully going through a short tract or little memorized presentation.

Please don't misunderstand me here. There is nothing wrong with that approach if you are comfortable doing it, but many of us are of somewhat more timid temperament and would welcome an alternative method.

A non-scary way to share your faith

One alternative to the above described confrontational method is to simply invite people to come to an event where they can meet Jesus.

That's what the disciples did. With the exception of Peter, we don't have a record of any of them preaching—maybe it was scary for them also. What they did was bring people to Jesus: Andrew brought Peter; Phillip brought Nathaniel; Matthew invited his friends to a party to meet Jesus.

Simply bringing people to Jesus at a church event—that's not scary. Pray that once they meet him and his people that they will continue the journey to know him personally and to trust him as forgiver and leader.

Bringing people to Jesus—that's what our fall celebration is all about. Invite your friends to join us. We promise—no scary stuff, but an incredible opportunity to bring friends to an event where they can begin to know Jesus, the savior, who can remove all our fears forever.

A reason to be part of our Fall Festival Event—

It's a way to share your faith that isn't scary.

Halloween is all about getting scared—for real or make-believe—with ghosts, spiders, witches, and scary faces all around. But as scary as Halloween is, there is something even scarier for many church people, and that is sharing their faith.

Deep down inside, most believers feel they ought to be doing more to let people know about the joy of salvation in Jesus, but at the same time, many would rather meet a real ghost or walk through a pit of live slimy creatures than share their faith with a neighbor.

Why is this so scary?

Every individual has his or her own reasons, but I find much of the fear comes from mistaken ideas about “witnessing” that are no truer than the masks worn at parties.

The false boogeyman version of faith sharing for many involves going up to a total stranger and asking, “Are you saved?” or some similar question and then painfully going through a short tract or little memorized presentation.

Please don't misunderstand me here. There is nothing wrong with that approach if you are comfortable doing it, but many of us are of somewhat more timid temperament and would welcome an alternative method.

A non-scary way to share your faith

One alternative to the above described confrontational method is to simply invite people to come to an event where they can meet Jesus.

That's what the disciples did. Except for Peter, we don't have a record of any of them preaching—maybe it was scary for them also. What they did was bring people to Jesus: Andrew brought Peter; Phillip brought Nathaniel; Matthew invited his friends to a party to meet Jesus.

Simply bringing people to Jesus at a church event—that's not scary. Pray that once they meet him and his people that they will continue the journey to know him personally and to trust him as forgiver and leader.

Bringing people to Jesus—that's what our fall celebration is all about. Invite your friends to join us. We promise—no scary stuff, but an incredible opportunity to bring friends to an event where they can begin to know Jesus, the savior, who can remove all our fears forever.

Thank you for downloading this excerpt of Halloween, a great time for evangelism.

For the entire book, all 79 pages that contains more articles, examples of templates, a case study on how to recruit volunteers for Halloween and other seasonal outreach events, go to:

The Effective Church Communications Library at <https://yvonneprehn.podia.com/ecclibrary>

For only $5.99 a month or $59 a year your entire church communication team has access to this book and many more in an ever-growing collection of ebooks on all aspects of church communications.

Welcome to the Effective Church Communications Library!

This ECC Library is an assortment of materials that will inspire you, train you, and perhaps even entertain you in the many aspects of church communications.

Need ideas? Need an overall vision/strategy for your church communications ministry? Need encouragement and biblical guidance for your work? Need timeless how-tos in how to create communications beyond the latest social media or technology tip?

The Effective Church Communications Library can help!

Categories of ebooks in the Effective Church Communications Library

- Biblical Foundation & Strategy for Church Communicators
- Seasonal Strategy overall & for specific holidays
- Digital & Social Media
- Specific Communication Projects Print & Digital
- Leading & Managing in a Church Communication Ministry
- Writing & Editing
- Graphic Design
- Typography

This Library is a collection of my writings

They vary wildly in many ways (the video above shows you pictures of them).

- Some are new and deal with current topics.
- Some are decades old and made up of scans of previously published newsletters, blogs, posts, and a variety of training materials.
- Some are neatly edited and carefully organized.
- Some are collections of what I hope will be useful, but the content may not be very tidy or organized.
- Some have typos. I am working on cleaning all of them up but I will probably meet Jesus before I get them all taken care of.
- All the materials have proven to be useful to church communicators from many denominations and many countries.

